Exploring Next Generation Grey

Online Survey open to the International Grey Literature Community

GL2021 offers the many and diverse communities of practice in the field of grey literature a unique opportunity to collaborate in addressing and defining the next phase in the digital transformation of grey literature. Together this can be accomplished by unlocking the potential next generation grey holds for information science and society. In advance of this year's International Conference on Grey Literature, a panel of five information professionals have together compiled a questionnaire. The questions not only seek to explore future areas of interest but also issues that remain of concern in the field of grey literature. The online questionnaire is now open to those both attending as well as those unable to attend GL2021. The results of the survey will be discussed during the Special Conference Panel Session and will provide content for further publication. Your views on the future of grey literature are important, <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/WWJQLMX>

GL2021 Conference Dinner and Awards

1st Class Grand Café Restaurant in Amsterdam's historic Central Station

The Four-Season private dining room in the 1st Class Grand Café Restaurant located in Amsterdam's historic Central Station is this year's setting for the GL Conference Dinner and GreyNet Award Presentations. Architect Pierre Cuypers designed this unique rail station, which opened in 1889. Inspired by Late Gothic and Early Renaissance architecture, Cuypers also designed the Rijksmuseum. The museum was earlier referred to as the 'Bishop's palace' and the train station was its 'cathedral'. For the design and interior, the architect opted for giant arched windows and an inspiring array of details. His drawings and colorful designs are packed with symbolic depictions and references to shipping, railway traffic, industry, as well as science and technology. Funding Research and Education on Grey Literature 'Value and Potential Uses of Persistent Identifiers'

GreyNet International seeks to explore the value of persistent identifiers (PIDS) in furthering research and education on grey literature. It is widely accepted that persistent identifiers enable and implement the FAIR data principles: Findable, Accessible, Interoperable, and Reusable. However, it is also considered that persistent identifiers can provide new avenues for research and education – both of which rely on funding.

ISTI Open Portal: a tool for Open Access

Michele Artini, Leonardo Candela, Silvia Giannini, Paolo Manghi, Anna Molino
CNR, ISTI, Pisa Italy

The scientific production of CNR researchers is deposited in the central institutional archive called "People". It stores metadata and exposes the bibliographic records only. Accordingly, it does not offer public search, browse, statistic portals.

<https://openportal.isti.cnr.it>

ISTI Open Portal collects and makes accessible the ISTI scientific production

13,829 research products | 1,587 Authors | 220 Projects | 13 research laboratories | 5,856 Open Access products

ISTI OA Policy since January 2018

"The metadata and a digital version of any published or unpublished research product must be deposited in People and made available by IOP".

IOP is an instance of RepOSGate, a software able to collect metadata records from a repository, and make them searchable and usable. The contents gathered from People - via OAI-PMH set - are enhanced and interlinked with information from scholarly communication services and resources (e.g. the OpenAIRE Research Graph, Scholixplorer).

Interlinking with Altmetrics | Links to related datasets | OA versions of documents | Links to project funders | Registration in OpenDisar | Registered in OpenAIRE, integration ongoing

First results

Open Access Trend: Increase in open access due to the entry into force of the ISTI OA Policy

OA 2008-2019 - Access rights: More than half of the grey literature is already accessible in Open Access OA 2008-2019 - Access rights by type: Technical Reports are the most used "grey" type about 60% is accessible in open access.

Ongoing work

- Gather the missing digital versions
- Collect authorizations from authors to open their works
- Improve the statistics dashboard
- Integrate IOP with bibliometric services
- Make IOP PlanS compliant
